October 4: Adam West tells award-winning TALES

The latest genre anthology to arise on the indie movie scene is TALES FROM BEYOND, from Central Film Group and Westbound Pictures. Winner of Best Fantasy Feature at 2004's Shockerfest and Best Sci-Fi Feature at the same year's Shriekfest, TALES is, as those awards imply, more in the vein of THE TWILIGHT ZONE than CREEPSHOW, spinning a quartet of fantastic/suspenseful stories written, produced and directed by Josh Austin, Nate Barlow, Eric Manning and Russell Scott. Adam West plays the owner of an antique bookstore who tells the four tales—"Abernathy," "Nex's Diner," "Life Replay" and "Fighting Spirit"—to a young couple. The producers are closing in on a distribution deal that should have TALES FROM BEYOND on DVD shelves early next year; check out the movie's official website for more information and a photo gallery. — Michael Gingold
